JULY 2017

To end July – Women Dancing with Gaia. Feminist Theological Visions. Link Gallery, University of Winchester. To arrange to visit the exhibition email Joanna.Wilson@Winchester.ac.uk or phone 01962 826 421.

This latest exhibition arises from the Cosmic Walk project on which Professor Lisa Isherwood and Dr Megan Clay are working at the Institute for Theological Partnerships. The Cosmic Walk attempts to place the divine on a wider canvas and understands women as agents within the evolutionary process, from the genetic level of the mitochondria, to the cultural and religious aspects of lived experience.

Emerging scholarship is showing how women have throughout our evolution danced with the energies of life rather than attempting to contain and master them. The contributing artists are Megan Clay, Jill Coughman, Angie Devereux, Annette Esser, Deborah Ireland, Jana-Faye Jakumeit, Christine Kinsey, Heike Knops, Eilean Lavelle, Silvia Martinez Cano and RKP with Rhian Jones (potter) and Elizabeth Ursic (musician).

10-12 July – God: None, One, Three or Many? Modern Church Annual Conference. Herts.

www.modernchurch.org.uk

What do we mean by the word 'God'? Or, for that matter, lower-case 'god' or 'gods'? A majority of people in Britain claim to believe in 'God', but is this 'the Christian God'? And what is 'the Christian God' anyway?

There are plenty of definitions, including the doctrine of the Trinity, which for some has lost its potency with the death of the metaphysical systems in which it emerged, whilst for others it remains the best approach we have. But all the definitions can be and have been contested.

Theology cannot ignore the ideological currents and conflicts of our time. Scientific naturalism, new forms of nature mysticism, postmodernism and feminism all pose their own challenges. What remains of 'God' and how much can remain unchanged? Even the assumption that God must be 'personal', 'One' (or 'Three in One') is a matter for debate.

This conference will ask hard questions about Christian understandings of God, what they actually amount to, and whether they have been or need to be supplanted by other ways of thinking and relating to 'God'.

We will review traditional and contemporary theologies and philosophies, and contributions from the human sciences and the arts. There will be plenty of room for honest discussion, probing questions, and exploring relationships between theology, liturgy, spirituality and everyday life.

Conference Chairs: Prof Linda Woodhead & Revd Prof Jane Shaw

For many people in churches, change is a no-go area, a source of stress and the cause of major disagreement. Yet change is the central dynamic of the Christian faith: Jesus both changes people and in the resurrection moves from being a corpse to a living body. The Wild Goose Resource Group will draw on and explore what we have seen and enabled, such as the redesigning of space; solo performer ministries becoming shared endeavours; reluctant assemblies becoming oases of song.

Animism is such an exciting concept! It describes the traditional lifeways of indigenous people, stressing their commitment to live in relationship with all persons, of whom only some may be human. This is identical to the biblical vision of shalom and Jesus' teaching about the kingdom of God. We will explore all this, plus the radical eco-spirituality required to be a Christian animist in an urban-secular world, while seeking its transformation. ADVANCE NOTICES

Sunday 8 October – Eco Fun Palace Day at St James’s Church Piccadilly – All welcome.

“Everyone an artist, everyone a scientist.”

What is a Fun Palace? A campaign for culture at the heart of community – an annual weekend of arts and science events created by, for and with local people.

What do ‘local’ and ‘community’ mean at St James’s? We have an amazing range of science and arts organisations very close by, and many talented individuals and groups in our geographically dispersed community.

Why an Eco Fun Palace? To celebrate planet Earth on Harvest Sunday through cultural engagement with the natural world. St. James’s achieved an Eco Church Bronze Award in 2016, and this celebratory day is part of the journey towards Gold.

What's happening? Activities such as pavement geology; drumming; minibeast hunts; dance; DNA science and conservation activities; singing; the Universe Story timeline; competitions; community artwork; labyrinth walking; bio-media meltdown; fossils; knitting and much more as the programme develops.

Further info: www.sjp.org nearer the time. The day is free of charge.

13-15 October – GreenSpirit Annual Gathering - Restoring Balance: Learning from Nature.
Holland House, Worcestershire. www.greenspirit.org.uk/ag2017

At our Annual Gathering Working with Nature, our main speaker Nicola Peel will tell us about some of the many incredible projects that she has worked on in the Amazon. She will explain how we can learn from nature to produce solutions to help both people and the environment through biomimicry. The intention is that this will re-invigorate us to find more ways of living in harmony with the Earth and help us to develop solutions for some of the problems that face the planet now. As well as a talk, Nicola will facilitate a Workshop deepening our engagement with the elements (Earth, Water, Air and Fire) through movement and meditation and challenge us to learn from the elements and identify with them in practical ways. We will be able to give our individual responses and hopefully we will each come away with more ways in which we can make a significant difference in the world.

Nicola Peel has been working for most of her adult life on finding solutions. Since 2000 she has been working in the Ecuadorean Amazon. She travelled from the headwaters in Ecuador down the Amazon River to Brazil researching the effects of the oil industry on the environment and indigenous people who live there. Looking for solutions to help the people she met, she co-founded The Amazon Mycorenewal Project (using fungi to clean up contaminated sites), built rainwater systems for families drinking contaminated water and she has also initiated the clean-up of villages using eco-bricks (empty plastic bottles filled with rubbish). Nicola built the first ecological restaurant in the Amazon (built from 3,200 eco-bricks) and the first place to serve local coffee. Find out more at www.nicolapeel.com
